Thoughts on Prayer

Do you pray? Why do you pray? I've been thinking about that lately. My first answer is yes, I pray. My second answer is under development. I'm falling back on that old adage... If you aim at nothing, you're sure to hit it.

With that in mind, here is some of what defines the target for me...

Why do I pray? That has changed as life goes on

- First off, I prayed, and still do to get to know God
- John 1:1-2, 4, 14 & 18... He IS Communication! He's communicating Himself
- Now, I pray because I don't have the confidence to do life without Him
- I need to communicate with God; to hear Him and talk with Him
- Psalms 28:1
- I pray because He tells me He's listening
- I pray because He also answers... in His own time & way
- I also pray because I want what ONLY God can do... BIG Stuff!!
- And I pray, "Lord, please help me find that bolt I dropped in the engine bay of my car."
- I pray because God has afflicted me to want what I'm convinced He Wants
- I pray because that stuff hasn't happened yet
- I pray because other people have needs I can't meet.

So, how about you? Why?

Years ago, when we lived in Oregon, I read in the newspaper (the news used to land on your doorstep, printed on paper. Truth!) that a guy I went to High School with up in Seattle was hospitalized locally after a horrible car wreck. I went to the hospital to check on him and encountered his brother, who I also knew from school. I had since become a Christian.

As we talked, his brother told me they were praying for him. I asked, "Who are you praying to?" He gave me a blank stare, followed by a long silent pause... then no answer at all. It was sadly obvious that he had none. Why pray if we're not confident someone who can do something about it is listening?

I invite you to open your computer, or take out some paper and a writing stick, and begin to consider your answer. I suspect that doing so may encourage you to pray even more, more often, and for more reasons. Sometimes in heavy traffic in the midst of incompetent drivers. I do. I pray for me.
